

Quebec

continued from page 97

Other highlights include:

>> Le Moulin a Images, or Image Mill, designed by filmmaker and playwright Robert Lepage. The multimedia show will be projected onto silos in the Old Port area throughout summer 2008.

>> The Musee National des Beaux Arts du Quebec will display works from the Louvre's antiquity collections June 5-Oct. 26, 2008.

>> Quebec City will plant 400,000 new trees in May and June.

Quebec City, which takes pride in its organized tourism industry as well as its history, plans to put on a world-class bash, drawing 9 million visitors in 2008.

"The people of Quebec City really like to celebrate," said Paule Bergeron of Quebec City Tourism Office. "But many North Americans have a connection by marriage or birth or historical ties. They're invited."

For tourism information, contact Quebec City Tourism at www.Quebecregion.com, 1-877-783-1608.

Find links to the region's history, museums and cultural institutions at www.Quebecheritage.com.

Batterie Royale was built in 1690 to fend off British attacks. Ten of the original 11 cannons are still on display. // PHOTO BY LUC-ANTOINE COUTURIER